

ABSTRACT

A yoke used for an electromagnetic actuator is formed by molding a soft magnetic iron powder, and, in the yoke, a discontinuous portion is formed which prevents the occurrence of eddy current loss. This discontinuous portion prevents eddy current and permits the actuator
5 to operate at high efficiency.